HUSTONVILLE.

—Many visitors from surrounding counties attending the meetings at the Christian church and interest in Rev. Sharpe's sermons increases daily. A new fresh season is anticipated.

Judge Caminitz impaneled a couple of colored juries last week and the dignity and intelligence with which they acquitted themselves elicited universal admiration and commendation.

—Many of our citizens as litigants and witnesses found circuit court a little notorious in appearing early the first week of court and being put off from time to time till there was the inevitable distinction of being there at noon adjournment Saturday afternoon.

—The ladies of the Presbyterian church are preparing a supper, to be served on Thanksgiving night, the proceeds of which will be appropriated to improvements of their church building. Their deserved reputation of excellence as caterers insures a complimentary patronage.

—Bob McAlister, of your town, has been investigating the desirability of different West End farms for sale, and we assure him that no locality will extend him a more cordial welcome to citizenship than the incomparable Hustonville precinct. Give us an unbiased hearing, Bob, and you are "on."

—Hon. Henry Caminitz gives an instance of the wonderful preservative properties of an embalming fluid he uses in a subject, to which it was topically applied last February before burial, and on exhumation for removal a few days ago the features were as natural and lifelike as when the body was prepared for interment.

—George Weatherford, of Richmond, spent Sunday with his parents, W. F. Shipman, of Boyle, was here with friends Sunday. Carroll Reid, of Danville, was up last week supplementing the sport of two weeks on Green river by another raid on the birds. Despite the great disadvantages of dry weather and scarcity of water, the dogs found plenty of game and full bags were brought in every night.

—Dr. Brown and Chailey Bobon got in Saturday afternoon, not sorry that they didn't heed the advice of the weather, who discouraged their hunt at this juncture. Dry weather, mountain tares and absence of nearly every indication favorable to deer hunting, hurried them home, with only the solace of being greeted on every hand with the twit, "I told you so." The doctor is enthusiastic over the sanitary benefits of a few days' mountain exercise, solitude or most inviting deer stands and contact with a primitive condition of society, customs and surroundings, which carried him back to his boyhood of 15 or 20 years ago. Roads fit better than the bolehole trails, with which he was once familiar, nature undisturbed by the vandalism of man, save at long intervals, where a cabin and little denuding indicated a struggle against starvation, a cordial welcome to share such comforts as the host could afford, an eager inquiry about the outside world's movements while luxuriating in corn dodgers—whose formula he had long thought one of the lost arts—black coffee without "condiments," wild meats and sweet potatoes, the open fireplace flanked by three or four of the old cast cooking utensils, no longer offered for sale in the pretentious docks, the big wheel and spinning jennies occupying places now preempted by sewing machines and reel organs, in thickly settled districts, hand cards and flat hakes conspicuous in their altered places, strings of snap beans and dried pumpkins, savory sausages for various canned goods, attest a partial list of the vivid reminders of what he and Daniel Boone left in Virginia, when they pushed through Middlebury's site to this their land of cane and turk's cap. The doctor hasn't a regret, but is loquacious another communion with nature in her mountain solitudes, and with the most admirable representatives of Kentucky's almost traditional hospitality, the honest mountain men.

A Bit of Scouting.—There's a Presbyterian minister in Detroit, whose wife is very fond of this city as a place of residence. Some time ago the Synod to which he belongs was discussing the advisability of sending him away on some important business occupying a year or so. It was suggested to him and he went to his wife, as all good husbands do.

"My dear," he said to her cautiously, "what do you think of going away from Detroit?"

"I don't think of it at all," she answered promptly. "Why did you ask?"

"Well, the Synod has asked me to go and—"

She went over to him softly, and, putting both hands on his head in a motherly way, said solemnly:

"My son, if Synods entice thee, consent thou not."

And he didn't.—Detroit Free Press.

The rain seems to have been general in the Ohio Valley and there is great rejoicing.

LIBERTY, GAGE COUNTY.

—Mr. R. T. Pierce is now having the foundation timbers hauled to build a new hotel on the site of his old hotel, torn down in the disastrous fire of March, 1880. When it is completed it will fill a vacancy, and of course it will be an improvement on the old one and add attractive features to our town.

—For the past week there has been more than the usual stir in our town. On Saturday night, 11 o'clock, Elder W. A. Gibson, of Simpsonville, commenced a series of interesting meetings at the Christian church, holding them night and day, till Sunday, the 8th, when they closed. There was more than the usual attendance all the time and a deep interest taken in them. Both saint and sinner and even those of a different faith attended closely and had a warm feeling for the devoted preacher.

—Married, on the 5th inst., by Biblical ceremony, who has special license for the business, Mr. George Hedges, a bachelor some 25 years of age. The town folks had in a small quantity of liquid steam to give the couple a steamer, but may have been slightly intimidated by some light artillery demonstrations of some of the bachelors, and contented themselves with "bamboozling" him and letting him go. Also, on the same day, at the residence of the bride's father, P. Chell, by the Rev. Josiah Wilson, Mr. Lorenzo D. Cochran to Miss Bettie Chell.

—On Saturday, the 7th, the Monthly Teachers' Association met at this place. There were considerable "backs" at the start, and for a time it seemed that there would be a failure. There were teachers sufficient present, but it was difficult to find the association. The president, secretary and other officers failed to appear. At last a private in the ranks succeeded in having the court-house bell rung, a number of teachers assembled, principally female, and the vice-president, Prof. R. H. Brown, of the Jamie Wash Institute, though apparently a little bashful, presided with dignity and much ability. It being too late for any forenoon business, motion of J. Henry Thomas, the association adjourned to meet at the Christian church at 1 o'clock p. m.

In the evening a good crowd met at the church. Col. S. Adams, who was on the programme to deliver the address of welcome to the teachers, failing to appear, Elder W. A. Gibson was substituted, who delivered an appropriate and hearty address, welcoming the teachers, and also dwelt eloquently on the importance of teachers' associations and their benefits in devising the best methods of cultivating the rising generation. On the subject, "Incentives to Teachers," Prof. J. H. Hall was substituted for B. S. Reeder, absent. After adjuring to a number of incentives, such as good diversions, "Draw, sir, be earnestly and impressively urged the teachers to feel their suitability for the position before they became teachers, to attempt to teach no branches without developing character, he should be wrapped up in the interest of his pupils, he should have inspiration and should instill noble aspirations in his pupils. Prof. J. H. Allen filled the place of Knock Wesley on the subject, "System in Teaching," with much ability, and his remarks were very instructive. Several subjects were discussed with an account of the lateness of the hour and absence of those assigned to them. Music being called for, Miss Amanda O. Stone came forward to the organ and accompanied by Miss Lizzie Phillips, J. H. Loomis and others, "Let us Walk in the Light" was sung with spirit. "Allow to Secure the Cooperation of Parents," by L. N. Taylor, followed, and was criticized and discussed by Henry Thomas, Elder Gibson and J. M. Evans. Miss Lizzie Fogle criticized the subject, "The Wayfarer's Plight," The young misses, who are 12 years old each, delivered their pieces with correct expression and appropriate gestures and at the conclusion were warmly applauded. Miss Amanda O. Stone came forward to the organ and accompanied by Miss Lizzie Phillips with "The Wayfarer's Plight," The young misses, who are 12 years old each, delivered their pieces with correct expression and appropriate gestures and at the conclusion were warmly applauded. Miss Amanda O. Stone, aged 11 years, now sang, with organ accompaniment, the song "The Dear Old Shawl my Grand-mother Wore" in such fine style and with such pathos that at its conclusion she, too, was warmly applauded. The writer can speak with more freedom of the performances of these three young misses, from the fact that though they are his own pupils at present, yet he claims no credit for their performances, for whatever praise they are entitled to is due to their own bright genius and to Mrs. Jennie Clark, who had them in tow at the time, preparing for a Sunday-school concert.

In conclusion, Elder Gibson being called upon, delivered a fine address, wishing all success and prosperity and gave an earnest appeal in behalf of popular education, claiming that as much as loves all schools that he had rather see any school go down than the public schools, that they were the hope of the State and the Union.

John M. Owens, J. H. Allen and J. H. Thomas were appointed a committee to decide time and place of holding next meeting. It was decided in favor of Danville, and time, Saturday before the 1st Sunday in December.

Paul J. N. Hall, Miss Lizzie Fogle and J. Tarrant were appointed a committee on programme and the association adjourned.

Notwithstanding the extreme inclemency of the weather, Tuesday evening, Mrs. Jennie Clark's entertainment for the benefit of the Sunday school at this place was attended by a good sized crowd and was a grand success. We much regret that want of time prevents us from giving a detailed account of the proceedings, with the names and parts of those participating. The exercises were varied and well performed, consisting of recitations, songs, dialogues, &c. All who attended were well pleased.

Our bachelor fossil, Richard Gibbons, who made his debut as a manager of the curtain macabre, frequently received loud applause for his unique performances.

GENEVA AND LIBERTY.

—The blessed rain has been steadily falling for 21 hours and as the Times goes to press the sun is of its pattering on roof-shingle and window-pane. Never was falling water more beautiful, or more needed. The earth was parched. Vegetation was scorched as by the frosts of mid-winter. Meadows were stubble. Wheat was shriveling in the ground. The face of all nature was seared and browned as with the breath of flame. There was a lack of water for either man or beast. A water-lamine stared us in the face.

But the clouds obeyed the providences of God. The blessed rain came down in buckets and barrels and streams. It revived springs, filled wells, flushed water-courses, tinted the wheat fields, refreshed the earth and refreshed man.

And for all the tender mercies of an ever-watchful and all-providing Providence, let saint and sinner be alike thankful.

The Blessed Rain.

This beautiful prose poem is from the pen of Editor J. M. Richardson, of the Glasgow Times.

The blessed rain has been steadily falling for 21 hours and as the Times goes to press the sun is of its pattering on roof-shingle and window-pane. Never was falling water more beautiful, or more needed. The earth was parched. Vegetation was scorched as by the frosts of mid-winter. Meadows were stubble. Wheat was shriveling in the ground. ## Zachary and Pierce Debate.

(To the Editor Interior Journal.)

The religious discussion at Byrdtown, Tenn., closed the 8th inst., with good feeling existing on the part of all who attended. Many expressed themselves greatly benefited by the investigation. From 600 to 1,000 people were in attendance during the entire discussion. At the close of the last session the congregation joined in singing "Jerusalem my Happy Home, with the beautiful chorals. "We're going Home to Live Eternity," and all gave to each other and the two debaters the parting hand of brotherly love. This debate is a living demonstration of the truth that two christian gentlemen can meet and discuss religious differences without becoming angry. Very truly yours,

JAMES W. ZACHARY.

—"McIntyre's Troubles" is the name of this week's attraction at the Wagner, the Mahara Bros. company beginning their engagement with a matine yesterday afternoon. "McIntyre's Troubles," as might be expected from its name, is one of those nonsensical productions now so popular, which contain just enough trace of plot to hold together a sparkling succession of songs, interspersed with gaudy quantities of "specularities." The skirt is a fine example of its kind. The songs are catchy and cleverly introduced. The play made a decided hit yesterday and was witnessed by crowded houses at both performances.—Monday, Nov. 11, 1891. At Walton's Opera House, Nov. 17.

If an S and an I and O, U,
With an N at the end, spell Su;
And an E and a Y and an E spell I,
Pray, what is a speller to do?

Then, if also an S and I and a G
And an H E D spell ride,
There's not much left for a speller to do,
But go and countem' stonkeyesighed.

Possibly with a desire to flatter his hearers, that tactful orator, ex-Senator Ingalls, told a Boston audience the other night that "The Pilgrim" first fell upon their knees, then upon the aborigines; since then they have fallen upon the Chinese."

JUST THE THING.—"We have no use for bear stories," said the editor; "our readers demand something spicy."

"Well," said the man with the manuscript, "this story is about a cinnamon bear."—Truth.

The rain seems to have been general in the Ohio Valley and there is great rejoicing.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—S. Jackson, the veteran florist of Hamilton county, O., and wife celebrated their 6th wedding anniversary this week.

Judge and Mrs. James H. Tinsley of Barboursville, celebrated their silver wedding on the 7th of this month. The six children, Miss Isela and Mr. Charles, are well known here.

Charles Eustis, at Otterbein, has secured a pretty young lady for his wife, and they will be married the 17th of this month, at 3 p.m., at the Luthern church there. Everybody invited.

Charles L. Tiffany, the head of the big jewelry firm, and his wife, will celebrate their golden wedding November 20, at their palatial home, New York. He is 80, but still attends to his large business.

The Winchester Democrat says of the man and the pretty woman who held religious services on the streets here for several days and nights: "J. E. Rice and Miss Isabella Shields, whose efforts to procure instrumental papers was detailed in our last, were married at Richmond instead of Mt. Sterling. From the papers we find that they have been married at several places, the last being at Bowling Green. It seems to have been a scheme to awaken sympathy and interest in the people."

—"Married, Wm. Irving Holden, Margaret White Carpenter, Wednesday, Nov. 11, Manchester, Ky." So reads an after card, which has just been received. The bride is a splendid representative of her sex, being handsome, intelligent, cultivated and that most interesting of persons, a fascinating widow. The man of her choice is a wholesale grocery merchant of Kansas City and is said to be a very fine gentleman. He has indeed won a jewel and we congratulate him, while wishing both a long and happy life.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

The Christian church of Lawrenceburg is anxious to secure a pastor.

Nearly all the religious papers are condemning the Voice, which in a recent issue declared "the church is the bulwark of the rum power."

Dr. Hunter, of Harrodsburg, will preach at the Presbyterian church Sunday in place of Mr. Helm, who is assisting him in a protracted meeting.

HUBLEY.

—Mrs. Jas. Dunn has returned from Cincinnati, where she has been having Dr. Johnstone operate on her for cancer of the breast. She claims that the operation was not so severe as was before.

Corn is selling here at $2 delivered in the crib, or $1.75 shucked in the field.

Uncle Greenberry Bright is thought not to be so well by his physician, Dr. Carpenter. He is at his son-in-law, R. L. White's, since the fire. Mrs. L. B. Adams, who has been at her father's bedside for some days, has returned to her home at Hustonville. Miss Maggie Swinebread has returned from an extensive visit in Tennessee among relatives. Mrs. Bone and her sister, Miss Sasser, of Tennessee, are visiting Miss Maggie Swinebread. Mr. Jno. Thompson, our old weather prophet, has returned from Virginia.—Our Friday's JOURNAL reached us Monday evening. How is that, Mr. John Wanamaker, for O. O. service!—Samuel Harris has been receiving some cattle this week of G. P. and J. W. Bright, which they have been feeding, at 5 cents per pound.

A traveler on the Ivory coast, West Africa, says that for three legs of powder and a rifle he can buy a young woman, that the sale of girls is as common as any other article of merchandise; that women live in a condition of complete slavery, and he added incidentally that he had 20 women in his caravan carrying baggage.

The older I grow—and I now stand upon the brink of eternity—the more comes back to me the sentence in the catechism which I learned when a child, and the fuller and deeper becomes its meaning: "What is the chief end of man? To glorify God, and to enjoy him forever."—Carlisle.

How They Got Rich—She—"I could have married either Whipper or Snappy if I'd wanted to, and both of those men whom I refused have since got rich, while you are still as poor as a church mouse." He—"Of course, I've been supporting you all these years. They haven't."—New York Weekly.

A GOOD WAY OUT.—Arcturus is so far from the earth that its light, traveling 100,000 miles a second, takes 181 years to reach us. We see the star, in fact, by means of light which left it in the days of Queen Anne.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL

STANFORD, KY., NOVEMBER 13, 1891

W. P. WALTON.

A great many people want to see Mr. Bradley get the vice-presidential nomination on the republican ticket, but the result of the recent elections has so filled Mr. B. with the spirit of self-sacrifice that he is ready to see the prize go to Gov. McKinley.—Conquer-Journal. That may be so, but that is not the reason Col. Bradley gives. He says that both political parties are too cowardly to nominate a Southern man on the National ticket, or the democrats would nominate John G. Carlisle, whom he had rather see president than any man in the country, provided a democrat is to be elected. He didn't add that on the other hand his party would nominate him for vice-president, but we can draw our inferences all the same, and in the event it should be realized, no one will shout louder for the big-hearted, big-boned Kentuckian than we.

Mr. Gov. Jones, of New York, was buried completely out of sight by the recent cyclone in the Empire State, that but few have ever thought of him since. The "man who pays the freight," although claiming to be a democrat and having been elected with Hill as one, promised to throw himself in the breach and do all in his power to defeat Flower, whose sole offending seems to have been that he was more popular than Jones and got the democratic nomination by acclamation, notwithstanding Jones was a candidate. The result shows that Jones is a very small potato and few in a hill politically and otherwise. It is a pity he will be governor of New York from the time Hill resigns to become Senator, till Flower is inaugurated in January. He ought to be kept away out in the cold.

Although the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette is howling for Foraker for U. S. Senator and claiming his election "beyond the shadow of a shade of a doubt," a majority of the legislature seem to be for Sherman. The republicans claim 55 votes in the General Assembly and of the 48 necessary for a nomination, the correspondents who have interviewed the members, say that Sherman has 41 and Foraker only 35. Sherman has served his party long and honorably and it would be the height of ingratitude for it to throw him overboard now for man whose chief claim seems to be his gift of keeping alive the dying embers of the civil war.

This recent election demonstrated very clearly that the reduction of the tariff is the only issue upon which the democrats can unite and achieve victory, and the smart Senators and Congressmen who came home last spring determined to advance the silver question and retire Cleveland, have learned a thing or two. Already a number of them have seen the error of their way and are outspoken for Cleveland and for honest taxation believing that the silver business can take care of itself. Let the tariff and an economically administered government be our battle cry and we are as sure to win in 1892 as the election day comes.

A arry in the U. S. court at Louisville gave Brakeman Howe $5,685 damages against the N. N. & M. V. Howe was sent back to flag a train one night and while waiting the train came along and cut his arm off. If this wasn't contributory negligence, which might have caused a greater disaster, it would be hard to suggest a case, but the brakeman proved that he had been worked almost to death without extra pay and that it was beyond his physical endurance to have stayed awake. The jury thought so too, and gave him nearly all he claimed.

It is sent out from Frankfort that the three wise men of the recency committee are at work laying off the state into judicial districts. This looks very much like they do not know what they were hired for. The legislature will attend to that without any suggestions and if the commissioners don't look sharp that body will put but little attention to any of its suggestions.

Gov. Hill has issued his thanksgiving proclamation and because he did so ahead of the president the republican papers are charging him with disrespect. The country can not wait on a president who has nothing to be thankful for and is consequently in no hurry to proclaim a thanksgiving, and it will admire Gov. Hill's timely action.

In his salutary in the Chicago Times Carter Harrison announces that he is "there to stay." This is a bad sign. A paper which started here once upon a time was very glib about being here to stay. It is not here now, nor was it six months after the assertion was made.

New ORLEANS is bound to her lottery idols. The contest between the pros and antis for delegates to the State convention to nominate officers resulted in a victory by 11,000 majority for pros.

MCKINLEY's official plurality in Hamilton county, O., which includes Cincinnati, is 5,776, but nevertheless Campbell has a majority of the white vote.

DAN O'SULLIVAN's fight against the lotteries in the Louisville Critic, has resulted in the grand-jury finding indictments against 31 of the Frankfort lottery agents and two of the Louisiana Dan usually gets what he goes for.

—The music class of Garrard College will give an entertainment at the County House next Monday night.

—Uncle Ben Robinson, who was hurt by his horse throwing him a short time ago, was able to be in town Wednesday.

—George Denny and Hampton Anderson, both colored men of this county, have been granted pensions at the rate of $12 per month.

—The town trustees have met and "whispered and resolved" in regard to the local option law. There is no doubt that whisky is sold illegally on "Battle Row," but getting any one to go before the court and swear it is a dog with another tail.

—The Garrard County Bible Society met at the Baptist church Sunday night. This society had recently purchased a new stock of bibles and testaments and they, together with a handsome book case were destroyed by the recent big fire. They were not insured.

—The fire alarm (nothing unusual of late in Lancaster) again brought out the citizens Tuesday morning. The alarm was caused by the burning out of a chimney at the residence of Mr. F. Brown which was extinguished. Practice makes perfect and the boys can get the fire engine out about as quick as a dry fire company.

—Mc. Wm. Patterson and Miss Jessie Johnson were married today, Thursday, at the home of the bride's parents, near Morehead. The bride is a daughter of T. M. Johnson, a prosperous farmer, and the groom is a son of Judge James Patterson. The ceremony was performed by Eld. J. C. Frank. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for the home of the groom in Covington.

—The papers are filled with items as to the contest for postmaster of Paducah. This is a matter of great concern to the public and has assumed national proportions. Of course the people of Kentucky feel a great interest in the result, as it is of the utmost importance to know who is to lick stamps and hand out letters at the post-office in Paducah. The Civil affair dwindles into insignificance compared with that of the P. M. at Paducah, Ky.

—Chell Johnston and wife, of Louisville, are here to attend the wedding of his sister. Ed Sparks and wife, of Nicholasville, visited his grandmother Sunday. Hoban Glass and Fisher Gaines, of Camp Nelson, were here Sunday. Mrs. Saunders, of Lawrenceburg, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. W. Billard. The Civil affair dwindles into insignificance compared with that of the P. M. at Paducah, Ky.

—Because Col. John F. Mines, the old newspaper man, went back to his cups and died of drunkenness after he had been treated by the Keeley bichloride of gold remedy, is no reason why the New York Press, World and Sun should persist in ridiculing the Dwight cure. It is well known that thousands have been cured by this wonderful remedy and the fact that one in a thousand should relapse after treatment is not a matter of any great wonder. It would seem that there are those who would be rejoiced to know that the whole thing is a failure, but why this should be so is not perceptible when the need of such a remedy is so apparent. Every lover of humanity ought to rejoice in the discovery of anything that will rescue a victim of the liquor habit from the perils that environ him and that will inevitably lead him to ruin.

—The statement telegraphed from St. Louis as to an attempt to outrage a "six-year-old child" by Sam Hunt turned out on trial to be without any foundation in fact. Sam Hunt is a negro man on 14 years of age and the girl is 14 years old. She is very handsome and unusually intelligent. She stated on examination that she was playing together and that the negro boy had a naked when he threw up and it was caught by her and then he caught her hand to take it from her. That was all there was of it and no attempt was made by the boy to do anything wrong. The boy made the same statement and both were corroborated by a young man who was with in a hundred yards of the parties. Mr. Keely, the farmer with whom the boy lived, testified as to his good character. Upon a full hearing of the case the defendant was discharged. The prosecution was conducted by County Attorney pro tem, F. M. Hale and Col. W. D. Bradbury and the defense by Gen. W. J. Baldwin.

—Judge Sterling B. Toney, of Louisville, is a tony speaker, judging from his introduction of Hon. Israel Daugherty on the evening of the 1st. He told the audience they were to hear "a dramatic commentary upon a golden text touched by hallowed fire." Could the Cœurs of the magicians; the fiery, impudent and unctuous Fontaine, T. Fox Lobbitt, in the widest stretch of his imagination, equal this? He referred to Tally, Minnie, Gringram, Sherman and Burke, but said none of them surpassed the "golden tongued Demosthenes," Daniel Daugherty, of New York. Mr. Daugherty simply replied "With a modesty characteristic of the Cœurs, I blush at the introduction." Judge Toney might truly truthfully added that all of the distinguished oratory uttered is, together with an immensity of the host of other golden tongues, silver-tongues, brass-tongues and pewter-tongues, have long since passed away and the world still moves in its accustomed way, unmindful of the less it has suffered.

—Card of Thanks.
To the Editor of the Courier Journal.
Allow me through your valuable columns to offer my heartfelt gratitude to the dear friends who rendered such timely aid in rescuing my home from last Monday's fire. May the dear Lord preserve them all from such a calamity as fire.

Mrs. N. A. Tyree.

Dr. T. S. Grier.—"There was a night down street a little while ago, but they couldn't find a detective."

"What use did they have for a detective?"

"They wanted him to find a policeman." —Puck.

A second-hand clothing store has been opened in one of the offices of Price's Hotel, stable by Sam Himeshelt & Co.

The city council of Danville has ordered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the scoundrels who set fire to Durham & Barnes' store.

Travelers by the ground are breaking up beautifully since the rain, the north having a similar effect and those in pulverizing the earth. Wheat is coming out timely and after all there is much life in the old land yet.

The inspection train, consisting of five special sleeping, eating and observation cars, passed yesterday with General Manager J. C. Metcalf and all the division superintendents. It is their annual tour over the road and as the system embraces nearly 4,000 miles it will require almost a month for the trip.

An incendiary attempt to destroy Durham & Barnes' store, in Danville, which would communicate the flames to the adjoining buildings and burn the business portion of the town, was discovered in time to prevent a conflagration. When an entrance was gained into the store it was discovered that paper and pieces of boxes had been stacked at the back door and saturated with coal oil and ignited to further aid the flames. A hole had been cut in the door about a foot from the ground and the fire was burning on both sides and rapidly approaching a large coal oil reservoir in the room. It is thought to have been an attempt to destroy the town by some of the negroes or their friends who have been hunted down and heavily fined for carrying on the sale of whisky in violation of the local prohibitory laws.

The Music Department of Garrard College will give its 8th musical entertainment at the courthouse at Lawrenceburg, Monday night, Nov. 16. The programme embraces vocal and piano performances and a couple of violin solos by Little Miss Isabella Bailey, daughter of Dr. Steele Bailey, of this place.

The bunch of credibility is very largely developed on Major H. W. Vandevere's head. He really believes that there is such a man as Starr, of Philadelphia, and that he is coming here to build the winter works, while other people are persuaded that when this wonderful Star appears the other stars will rise in the west and set in the east.

PRESIDENT R. W. Hocker writes to J. S. Hoekker, Esq., that his Metropolitan National Bank, of Kansas City, has succeeded to the business of the Merchants National and moved into its elegant building. The consolidation will leave the Metrop. a very strong institution, the capital remaining the same as now and the combined deposits over $1,000,000. Mr. Hocker, who engineered the deal, is highly spoken of as a man by the Kansas City papers and he deserves the congratulations he is receiving.

The following from the Lexington Leader will be of interest here, where the young lady is well-known. Miss Lula Mock, of Lincoln county, who moved to this city about 2 months ago, has been restored to health by a difficult surgical operation performed by Drs. Barrows and Johns at the Protestant Infirmary. An interesting feature of the case is that she was treated four years ago by the same surgeon, Dr. John C. Vernon, who has since died.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF STANFORD, KY.

Capital Stock..... $200,000
Surplus..... 16,500

Attention of the public is invited to the fact that this is the only National Bank in Stanford.
Under the provisions of the National Bank Act
deposits are secured not only by the capital stock, but by the stockholders' liability for an amount equal to the stock, so that depositors of this institution are secured by a fund of $200,000.
Five thousand dollars a year to the United States government and its assets are examined at stated times
by government agents, thus securing additional and perfect safety to depositors.

This institution is originally established as the Depository of Stanford, then reorganized into the National Bank of Stanford to expand and again reorganized as the First National Bank of Stanford in 1888, has had practically an uninterrupted existence of years, having been applied with facilities, comfort, intelligence and frankness than ever before in its long and honorable career. A series of corporations, stocks, firms and individuals respectively succeeded.

The history of this bank is composed of

T. J. Foster, Stanford;

Forrest Real Estate Co.;

J. W. Hall, Stanford;

S. H. Bell, Stanford;

M. L. Miller, Mt. Vernon;

J. S. Hart, Mt. Vernon;

SUCCESSOR TO THE LINCOLN NATIONAL BANK OF STANFORD;

(Now closing up with the same assets and under the same management)

By provisions of the charter, deposits are as fully protected as any deposited in any National Bank, in the extent of the amount of their stock in the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares. It may act as executive, administrative trustee, &c, as fully as an individual.

To those who enter into this business, us
while managing the Lincoln National Bank of Stanford, we here render our many thanks and trust they will continue to transact their business with us, offering as a guarantee for promptness to pay out our "recent years" experience in banking and as favorable accommodations as are consistent with sound banking.

AN INTERESTING GAME.

Instructive Amusement for People Too
Dull to keep them.

A new social game consists in taking titles of books and representing each title by a picture, by drawing or by some arrangement of objects so that it can be guessed from them, somewhat after the manner of riddles. Of course the one who guesses correctly the greatest number of titles takes the first prize.
There is also a second prize and a
"body" prize.

About thirty took part in the game I saw, though the number could have been extended indefinitely. Fifty titles had been selected by the hostess, and their representations carefully prepared.
Each player having been provided with a paper on which there were fifty blanks
for these titles, at a signal we entered the room where the objects and pictures were displayed. But it was no easy task to solve all the puzzles before us. Some titles were known at once, others remained unguessed to the end.

Among the objects and titles were such as these:

A candle on a map of Asia represented
"The Light of Asia."

A large white cardboard with a tiny
2 on it was "We Two."

A picture of a milldam and a white beam on the top of the picture was
"Adam Bele."

A little ladder, with a toy monkey on the top rung and a toy man at the foot
was "The Descent of Man."

The word Sin in red ink was "A Cardinal Sin."

The sheet music of "Yankee Doodle"
was "American Notes."

An O half concealed in a bunch of ferns was "Inferno."

A toy donkey, an O, and some tea
leaves was Donkey-sot—"Don Quixote."

Some vocal music thrum through the handles of several keys was "Songs in Many Keys."

A pie upon some ears of corn was
"Pioneers."

A burned out candle in a candlestick
was "The Light That Failed."

Some dolls in ball costume, rouging
their faces before a mirror, was "Medern Panauters."

Some half dollars, quarters and dimes
was "The American Commonwealth."

And so the titles ran on, some difficult,
some causing much fun, and all interesting.

The possibilities of this game are seen at a glance. With brightness and ingenuity
many very puzzling and amusing effects can be worked up.

There are two good rules to be enforced. The time for guessing should be limited, and communication while guessing strictly forbidden, else the first prize
is likely to go to some one who has been assisted by the guesses of others, and the
conscientious player has no chance.

Other adaptations of this game might be to titles of poems, quotations, etc.
But the best seems to be in titles of standard or reasonably well known, not obscure, books.—Christian Union.

A New Treatment for Burns.

In one of the hospitals at Berlin a new treatment of burns has been tried with great success. The advantages of this new treatment are quicker recovery and less suffering from the wound. The burn is first thoroughly washed with a solution of 3 per cent. of carbolic acid, or similar disinfectants used for this purpose. The blisters are then carefully opened so that none of the flesh beneath is injured, and the surface covered with finely powdered subnitrate of bismuth. A thick layer of soft cotton wool is then placed over the powdered surface and left in position until it is moistened with the watery discharges.

This dressing should be changed as often as the cotton bandages get moist.
In exceptionally bad burns ointment of bismuth is substituted for the dry powder,
and the suffering in this case is greatly reduced. In the many cases treated in the German hospital no symptoms of poisoning from the bismuth have yet been discovered, while the treatment seems, in other respects, to be far superior to the old methods.—Yankee Blad.

Painters.

Use China nest eggs.

Ducks fatten on potato chips.

Pigs should begin to eat when two weeks old so as to relieve the mother breeding sow.

The breeds of swine that received primarius at the St. Louis fair were the Poland-China, Backsides, Duror Jersey,
Chester white, Yorkshire and Essex.

Speaking of the nasty habit of allowing poultry to roost in the tool house, The Rural New Yorker remarks, "You might just as well invite the hens in to roost on your wife's sewing machine."

Standard prices for horses in the New market: Pairs of carriage horses, $800 to $1,800; teams of trustees or express horses, $600 to $800; good saddlehorses, $250 to $500 each; drivers, $275 to $750;
business, $175 to $275; and streetcars, $100
to $180.

In raising animals for breeding purposes let them be well matured before their work begins. Do not overfeed, as fat is a disease that impairs a breeder's usefulness. It is a keen observer and reasoner who knows when an animal is just right, neither too fat nor too lean.

Instead of shutting up a sow and weaning pigs in the usual fashion, try simply keeping away from the sow all starchy, milk producing food. Give her dry feed and let the milk dry up itself.
A man who has tried this method says that by it the milk gradually fails and the pigs wean themselves before they know it.

Poultry rearers are apt to give rather too much sulphur to their flocks. A very small quantity during the moulting season may perhaps be dosed out to them with profit if weather be dry; but in wet weather sulphur fed to chickens make them lame and rheumatic. Cases of leg weakness have been traced directly to this cause.

SOME HANDSOME COLLIES.

A Servant and Friend No Rovre Will Turn from You!

The Rural New Yorker held recently
a symposium on the collie dog. Below are pictures of a handsome male and female collie respectively, copied from that paper. "A Scotshman" writes enthusiastically of these much prized friends of man in his native land. He says:

The Scotch collie has been bred to assist the farmer in handling cattle, sheep and hogs. The farmer breeder finds his trained collie equal to two or three men in handling his herds or flocks in herding or driving to water,
new pastures or market. Few indeed are the Scotch farms where the collie is not an indispensable part of the help,
sometimes overlooked it may be, but sel-
s

dom missing.

Without the collie the sheep industry of Scotland would be an impossibility and her heather clad hills would not be tenanted by the flocks of sheep in summer, which are turned into the sheep (turnip) fields in winter, realizing money for the farmer.

The collie owes his remarkable intelligence to his constant contact with men. All day long on the hillsides he is the only companion of the shepherd, and sits near him still with his master in the cottage romping with the weans. While you can teach the collie every trick your ingenuity can devise he does not show them off to strangers. He has a more exalted and practical purpose in life, that of watching and ad-d-camp for his master. For the small farmer he will drive the cows to pasture in the morning and bring them home to be milked at night. The chickens will be kept from the front yard, and where there are children no better playmate can be found for them. I know where a collie carries written messages from his master to his mistress (on a small place)
for needed information; (why can many steps not be saved on the farm in this way?) and, last but not least, he is a terror to tramps.

Did you ever watch a collie head off a flock of sheep? See him squat before the leader, and by his superior brain or magnetic power force the sheep back step by step, quietly moving forward as the sheep move backward until his object is attained. There is no fuss, scattering or chasing.

There are two good rules to be enforced. The time for guessing should be
limited, and communication while guess-
ing strictly forbidden, else the first prize
is likely to go to some one who has been
assisted by the guesses of others, and the
conscientious player has no chance.

Stampede, which breeders recognize as detrimental to the growth of all kinds of stock. Many shepherds have their collies trained to pick out the sickly or hurt sheep from the flock, or any animal needing attention. If you want to be successful in raising stock you have to fix or lay yourself out to take proper care of them. If you desire competent, reliable help you have to teach and watch them. Put a little time into the training or teaching of an intelligent dog, one which takes as naturally to caring for stock as a duck to water, and you have a servant and friend to reverse any disaster which can come to you, and whose motto is "eye ready."
